

Simpson Refused Foreign Jury

reporter at his work in the Lyons Piece Dye Works and consented to tell what he claims to have passed through during his stay at police headquarters.

The man explained that a report had been going the rounds for some time that on the night of September 14, when the Rev. Edward W. W. and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills were murdered, he was in De Key's Lane, which leads to the old Phillips farm. One of these rumors placed him within seventy-five feet of the crabapple tree under which the bodies were discovered.

On August 12, Staub went on, he was taken from his work and escorted to Somerville. The time was the middle of the afternoon. He maintained steadfastly that it was September 13, the night before the killings, that he had been in the lane.

Chained to Bedpost

"Toward 8 o'clock that night Capt. John Lamb, who had been doing some of the questioning, turned to a state trooper and said, 'Take care of this fellow,' the dye worker continued.

"I was then taken to a bed and told to lie down after my clothing had been removed. Then this trooper chained one of my arms to the bedpost above my head. I was forced to lie in that position until 8 o'clock the next morning. The pain was terrific—so bad I could not sleep.

"On being finally released, I was told I was under arrest as a material witness. Later they let me go."

While Senator Simpson's investigators were announcing their determination to halt questioning of witnesses in the Hall case by defense operatives and alleging attempts at intimidation, G. H. Thompson of New York visited several witnesses in New Brunswick, declaring defiantly that there is "no law which can prevent the defense from questioning."

Thompson, who said he is employed by Timothy N. Pfeiffer of New York, of defense counsel, questioned Mrs. Helen Walsh, who has said that Mrs. A. G. Fraley might have seen some of the principals in the case on the night of the murder; Mrs. Fraley, and Mrs. Minna Clark, who has denied that she had Hall-Mills love letters in her possession.

Miss Charlotte Mills, daughter of the murdered choir singer, was a visitor in Senator Simpson's office this evening. She arrived in a handsome automobile bearing a New York city license plate.

Senator Simpson told newspapermen he was to confer with Miss Mills, but said he would not make the details of the conference public.

"Miss Mills," he said, "is apprehensive over the decision of the Supreme Court. She is anxious to see justice done in this case, but fears it may not be, because the application was denied by the Supreme Court."

Miss Mills was in conference with the special prosecutor a half hour. When she came out she was crying.

"She was crying," Senator Simpson said to reporters, "because she feels that she cannot get justice for her mother's death with a Somerset trial jury."

"She came to my office voluntarily when she heard the application had been denied. I told her I had done all I could."

Good Commuting

New York
to

BERGEN COUNTY NEW JERSEY

The Hudson River Bridge

will link Fort Washington, 178th Street, New York City with Fort Lee, Bergen County, New Jersey—creating a direct route across the Hudson that will reduce the actual crossing time to several minutes. The VEHICULAR TUNNEL between Canal Street, New York City and Jersey City, New Jersey, will shortly be opened forming another direct artery to Bergen County.

LIFE in Bergen County, due to its proximity to New York, is closely interwoven with that of the Metropolis. Thousands of residents commuting each day between Bergen County and New York City, are served by a traditionally efficient bus-train-and-ferry system. In fact, the average commuting time to or from Times Square is only 45 minutes!

And what welcome relief it is to be able to return at dusk from the crowded city to your own home in such glorious surroundings as one finds everywhere in Bergen County! Charming, modern, substantially constructed homes are Bergen County's outstanding characteristic. Splendid schools and libraries, ample recreational facilities, churches, theatres and convenient shopping centers contribute to the attractiveness of its suburban home-life. To you who seek true happiness, we say, "Come over the Hudson. Live and grow in Bergen County!"
